SEC. 204. HARASSMENT AND DISCRIMINATION; STANDARDS OF PROOF.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) harassment is a persistent and significant problem in the workplace in the United States;

(2) workers are harassed because of their sex (including sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth, or a medical condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, and a sex stereotype), race, color, religion, national origin, age, disability, genetic information, and uniformed services status;

(3) Congress enacted title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 intending to provide broad protection from many forms of bias in the workplace;

(4) the Supreme Court has recognized in City of Los Angeles Department of Water and Power v. Manhart, 435 U.S. 702 (1978), that the protection against sex discrimination in the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment under title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 reflects Congress' intent to ''strike at the entire spectrum'' of sex-based discrimination in employment;

(5) in 1980, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (referred to in this section as ''the Commission'') amended its Guidelines on Discrimination Because of Sex (referred to in this section as ''the Guidelines'') to specify that sexual harassment is a form of sex discrimination prohibited by title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964;

(6) in the Guidelines, the Commission explained that harassing conduct is unlawful where—

(A) ''submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual's employment'';

(B) ''submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used as the basis for employment decisions''; or

(C) the conduct ''has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive working environment'';

(7) the Commission further explained that, with respect to the evidence required to support a finding of unlawful harassment, it ''will look at the record as a whole and at the totality of the circumstances, such as the nature of the sexual advances and the context in which the alleged incidents occurred'' and emphasized that the ''determination of the legality of a particular action will be made from the facts, on a case by case basis'';

(8) six years later, the Supreme Court in Meritor Savings Bank v. Vinson, 477 U.S. 57 (1986), recognized that the protections under title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 are not limited to discrimination that causes ''economic'' or ''tangible'' loss, and held that the phrase ''terms, conditions, or privileges of employment'' in title VII of such Act is an ''expansive concept that sweeps within its protective ambit'' the practice of creating a hostile work environment based on discrimination in the form of harassment;

(9) in reaching this conclusion in the Meritor decision, the Supreme Court cited and approved the Guidelines;

(10) in the Meritor decision, the Supreme Court cited with approval lower court decisions that concluded that a hostile work environment based on race, religion, or national origin violates the prohibition of discrimination in the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment under title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which decisions included—

(A) Rogers v. EEOC, 454 F.2d 234 (5th Cir. 1971);

(B) Firefighters Institute for Racial Equality v. City of St. Louis, 549 F.2d 506 (8th Cir. 1977);

(C) Gray v. Greyhound Lines, 545 F.2d 169 (D.C. Cir. 1976);

(D) Compston v. Borden, Inc., 424 F. Supp. 157 (S.D. Ohio 1976); and

(E) Cariddi v. Kansas City Chiefs Football Club, Inc., 568 F.2d 87 (8th Cir. 1977);

(11) in defining the evidence required to prove a violation of title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, in the Meritor decision, the Supreme Court noted that harassment would be actionable when it is ''sufficiently severe or pervasive 'to alter the conditions of [the victim's] employment and create an abusive working environment' '' (quoting Rogers v. EEOC, 454 F.2d 234 (5th Cir. 1971));

(12) in Harris v. Forklift Systems, Inc., 510 U.S. 17 (1993), the Supreme Court clarified that harassment need not seriously affect an employee's psychological well-being or lead the employee to suffer injury in order to be unlawful, but rather, need merely create a work environment that a reasonable person in the protected class would find hostile or abusive;

(13) in Harris v. Forklift Systems, Inc., the Supreme Court held that whether a work environment is unlawfully hostile or abusive does not depend on any mathematically precise test, but rather, is to be determined by looking at all of the circumstances, with no single factor required;

(14) in National Railroad Passenger Corp. v. Morgan, 536 U.S. 101 (2002), the Supreme Court reaffirmed the Harris decision and further held that the hostility or abusiveness of each harassing act should be considered in the aggregate, not in isolation, regardless of whether such acts occur over days or even years;

(15) notwithstanding the rulings of the Supreme Court specified in this subsection, some lower court decisions have treated harassing conduct's severity or pervasiveness as the only 2 relevant factors in evaluating whether such conduct violates title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964;

(16) some lower court decisions have treated ''severe or pervasive'' as a threshold for liability, when the relevant inquiry is whether the harassing conduct actually altered the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment;

(17) some lower court decisions further have interpreted the ''severe or pervasive'' language in the Meritor decision so narrowly as to recognize only the most egregious conduct as unlawful, despite Congress' intent that title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 afford a broad scope of protection from discrimination;

(18) examples of decisions that use the erroneous analysis described in paragraphs (15) through (17) in the context of harassment on the basis of sex include—

(A) Singleton v. Department of Correctional Education, 115 Fed. Appx. 119 (4th Cir. 2004);

(B) Black v. Zaring Homes, Inc., 104 F.3d 822 (6th Cir. 1997);

(C) Weiss v. Coca-Cola Bottling Co., 990 F.2d 333 (7th Cir. 1993);

(D) Rickard v. Swedish Match North America, Inc., 773 F.3d 181 (8th Cir. 2014);

(E) Mitchell v. Pope, 189 F. Appx. 911 (11th Cir. 2006); and

(F) Brooks v. City of San Mateo, 229 F.3d 917 (9th Cir. 2000);

(19) lower courts have made similar erroneous decisions in the context of harassment on the basis of race, national origin, age, and disability such as in Crawford v. Medina General Hospital, 96 F.3d 830 (6th Cir. 1996), Shaver v. Independent Stave Co., 350 F.3d 716 (8th Cir. 2003), and Motley v. Parker-Hannifan Corp., No. 1: 94–CV–639 (W.D. Mich. 1995);

(20) in contrast, other lower court decisions applying the Meritor case and its progeny have appropriately recognized that a wide range of harassing behavior may alter the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, with no single type, frequency, or duration of conduct required to make a showing of severe or pervasive harassment;

(21) for example, in the context of harassment based on sex, those decisions have held that—

(A) conduct need not be physical to create a hostile or abusive work environment, as in Billings v. Town of Grafton, 515 F.3d 39 (1st Cir. 2008);

(B) an individual need not be the target of sexually demeaning conduct in order to experience unlawful harassment, as in Petrosino v. Bell Atlantic, 385 F.3d 210 (2d Cir. 2004);

(C) power disparities, such as the young age of the individual harassed, compound the conduct's harmful effects, as in EEOC v. R&R Ventures, 244 F.3d 334 (4th Cir. 2001);

(D) gender-based epithets are equally as unlawful as overtly sexual conduct, as in Gallagher v. C.H. Robinson Worldwide, Inc., 567 F.3d 263 (6th Cir. 2009); and

(E) a single incident can alter the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, as in Howley v. Town of Stratford, 217 F.3d 141 (2d Cir. 2000);

(22) similarly, in the context of harassment based on other protected characteristics, other courts have appropriately held that—

(A) calling an individual an ''old man'' and ''pops'' could create an actionably hostile work environment based on age, as in Dediol v. Best Chevrolet, Inc., 655 F.3d 435 (5th Cir. 2011);

(B) repeatedly calling an individual with mental illness ''crazy'' and stating that the individual is a threat to security is sufficient to support a finding of a hostile work environment based on disability, as in Quiles-Quiles v. Henderson, 439 F.3d 1 (1st Cir. 2006); and

(C) a single incident of calling an African-American individual the ''n word'' is sufficient to support a finding of a hostile work environment based on race, as in Rodgers v. Western-Southern Life Insurance Co., 12 F.3d 668 (7th Cir. 1993); and

(23) similar erroneous decisions have been rendered in the context of harassment on the basis of sex in employment under title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (20 U.S.C. 1681 et seq.), as in Farmer v. Troy University, No. 5:17–CV–70–B0 (E.D.N.C. 2017).

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) enact into statutory law provisions that establish that workplace harassment is a violation of the—

(A) protections from discrimination in the ''terms, conditions, or privileges of employment'' found in title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000e et seq.);

(B) protections from disability discrimination found in title I of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12111 et seq.) and sections 501 and 505 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 791, 794a);

(C) protections from age discrimination found in the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (29 U.S.C. 621 et seq.);

(D) protections from genetic information discrimination found in title II of the Genetic Information Nondiscrimination Act of 2008 (42 U.S.C. 2000ff et seq.); and

(E) protections from uniformed services status discrimination found in section 4311 of title 38, United States Code; and

(2) establish a liability standard for workplace harassment that fulfills Congress' intent of providing broad protection from discrimination in employment on the basis of race, color, religion, sex (including sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth, a medical condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, and a sex stereotype), national origin, age, disability, genetic information, and uniformed services status.

(c) ENACTING INTO STATUTORY LAW PROVISIONS ESTABLISHING WORKPLACE HARASSMENT AS AN UNLAWFUL EMPLOYMENT PRACTICE.—

(1) CIVIL RIGHTS ACT OF 1964.—Section 703 of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000e–2) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(o)(1)(A) In this subsection, the term 'workplace harassment' means conduct based on race, color, religion, sex (including sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth, a medical condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, and a sex stereotype), or national origin, regardless of whether it is direct or indirect, or verbal or nonverbal, that unreasonably alters an individual's terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, including by creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment.

''(B)(i) In this subsection, the term includes sexual harassment, which is conduct that takes place in a circumstance described in clause (ii) and that takes the form of—

''(I) a sexual advance;

''(II) a request for sexual favors; or

''(III) any other conduct of a sexual nature.

''(ii) A circumstance described in this clause is a situation in which—

''(I) submission to the conduct involved is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of employment;

''(II) submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for an employment decision affecting an individual's employment; or

''(III) such conduct unreasonably alters an individual's terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, including by creating an intimidating hostile, or offensive work environment.

''(2) It shall be an unlawful employment practice under subsection (a) to engage in workplace harassment.

''(3) In determining, for purposes of this subsection, whether conduct constitutes workplace harassment because the conduct unreasonably alters an individual's terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, including by creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment, the following rules shall apply:

''(A) That determination shall be made on the basis of the record as a whole, according to the totality of the circumstances. A single incident may constitute workplace harassment.

''(B) Incidents that may be workplace harassment shall be considered in the aggregate, with—

''(i) conduct of varying types (such as expressions of sex-based hostility, requests for sexual favors, and denial of employment opportunities due to sexual orientation) viewed in totality, rather than in isolation; and

''(ii) conduct based on multiple protected characteristics (such as sex and race) viewed in totality, rather than in isolation.

''(C) The factors specified in this subparagraph are among the factors to be considered in determining whether conduct constitutes workplace harassment and are not meant to be exhaustive. No one of those factors shall be considered to be determinative in establishing whether conduct constitutes workplace harassment. Such factors are each of the following:

''(i) The frequency of the conduct.

"(ii) The duration of the conduct.

"(iii) The location where the conduct occurred.

"(iv) The number of individuals engaged in the conduct.

"(v) The nature of the conduct, which may include physical, verbal, pictorial, or visual conduct, and conduct that occurs in person or is transmitted, such as electronically.

"(vi) Whether the conduct is threatening.

"(vii) Any power differential between the alleged harasser and the person allegedly harassed.

"(viii) Any use of epithets, slurs, or other conduct that is humiliating or degrading.

"(ix) Whether the conduct reflects stereotypes about individuals in the protected class involved.

"(4) In determining, for purposes of this subsection, whether conduct constitutes workplace harassment, conduct may be workplace harassment regardless of whether, for example—

"(A) the complaining party is not the individual being harassed;

''(B) the complaining party acquiesced or otherwise submitted to, or participated in, the conduct;

''(C) the conduct is also experienced by others outside the protected class involved;

''(D) the complaining party was able to continue carrying out duties and responsibilities of the party's job despite the conduct;

''(E) the conduct did not cause a tangible injury or psychological injury; or

''(F) the conduct occurred outside of the workplace.''.

(2) AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT OF 1990.—Section 102(b) of the Americans with Disabilities Act (42 U.S.C. 12112(b)) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (6), by striking ''and'' at the end;

(B) in paragraph (7), by striking the period and inserting ''; and''; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

''(8) engaging in workplace harassment, which is conduct based on disability, regardless of whether it is direct or indirect, or verbal or nonverbal, that—

''(A) unreasonably alters an individual's terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, including by creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment; and

''(B) is determined to be such harassment in accordance with paragraphs (3) and (4) of section 703(o) of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000e–2(o)).''.

(4) AGE DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT.—Section 4 of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (29 U.S.C. 623) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(n) It shall be unlawful under subsection (a) to engage in workplace harassment, which is conduct based on age, regardless of whether it is direct or indirect, or verbal or nonverbal, that—

''(1) unreasonably alters an individual's terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, including by creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment; and

''(2) is determined to be such harassment in accordance with paragraphs (3) and (4) of section

703(o) of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000e–2(o)).''.

(5) GENETIC INFORMATION NONDISCRIMINATION ACT OF 2008.—Section 202 of the Genetic Information Nondiscrimination Act of 2008 (42 U.S.C. 2000ff–1) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(d) WORKPLACE HARASSMENT.—It shall be an unlawful employment practice under subsection (a) to engage in workplace harassment, which is conduct based on genetic information, regardless of whether it is direct or indirect, or verbal or nonverbal, that—

''(1) unreasonably alters an individual's terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, including by creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment; and

''(2) is determined to be such harassment in accordance with paragraphs (3) and (4) of section 703(o) of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000e–2(o)).''.

(6) CHAPTER 43 OF TITLE 38, UNITED STATES CODE.—Section 4311 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(e) It shall be an unlawful employment practice under subsection (a) to engage in workplace harassment, which is conduct based on uniformed services status (meaning the membership, application for membership, performance of service, application for service, or obligation, described in subsection (a)), regardless of whether it is direct or indirect, or verbal or nonverbal, that—

''(1) unreasonably alters an individual's benefits of employment, including by creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment; and

''(2) is determined to be such harassment in accordance with paragraphs (3) and (4) of section 703(o) of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000e–2(o)).''.

''(2) no postdispute arbitration agreement that requires arbitration of a work dispute shall be valid or enforceable unless—

''(A) the agreement was not required by the covered entity, obtained by coercion or threat of adverse action, or made a condition of employment, work, or any employment-related or work-related privilege or benefit;

''(i) the right of the worker under paragraph (3) to refuse to enter the agreement without retaliation; and

''(ii) the protections under section 8(a)(6) of the National Labor Relations Act (29 U.S.C. 158(a)(6));

''(C) each worker entering into the agreement entered the agreement after a waiting period of not fewer than 45 days, beginning on the date on which the employee was provided both the final text of the agreement and the disclosures required under subparagraph (B); and

''(D) each worker entering into the agreement affirmatively consented to the agreement in writing; and

An issue as to whether this chapter applies to an arbitration agreement shall be determined under Federal law. The applicability of this chapter to an agreement to arbitrate and the validity and enforceability of an agreement to which this chapter applies shall be determined by a court, rather than an arbitrator, regardless of whether any contractual provision purports to delegate such determinations to the arbitrator and irrespective of whether the party resisting arbitration challenges the arbitration agreement specifically or in conjunction with other terms of the contract containing such agreement.

''(2) COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS.—Nothing in this chapter shall apply to any arbitration provision in a contract between a covered entity

(1) IN GENERAL.—To assist States in meeting the requirements of section 434, the Secretary shall make allotments to States from the amounts appropriated under section 436 and not reserved under paragraph (5).

(2) MINIMUM ALLOTMENTS.—In any case in which—

(A) the total amount appropriated under section 436 for a fiscal year is not less than $20,000,000, the allotment under paragraph (1) for such fiscal year—

(i) to each of American Samoa, Guam, the United States Virgin Islands, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands may not be less than $100,000; and

(ii) to any State not described in clause (i) may not be less than $200,000; and

(B) the total amount appropriated under section 436 for a fiscal year is less than $20,000,000, the allotment under paragraph (1) for such fiscal year—

(i) to each of American Samoa, Guam, the United States Virgin Islands, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands may not be less than $50,000; and

(ii) to any State not described in clause (i) may not be less than $150,000.

(3) REDUCTION OF ALLOTMENT.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), if the aggregate of the amounts to be allotted to the States pursuant to such paragraphs for any fiscal year exceeds the total amount appropriated for such allotments under section 436 for such fiscal year, the amount to be allotted to each State for such fiscal year shall be proportionately reduced.

(4) INCREASE IN ALLOTMENTS.—If the sum appropriated under section 436 and not reserved under paragraph (5) for any fiscal year exceeds the aggregate of the minimum allotments for all States under this subsection for that fiscal year, such excess amount shall be allotted among the States, including American Samoa, Guam, the United States Virgin Islands, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, so as to increase proportionately the minimum allotment for each such State.

(5) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—In any case in which the total amount appropriated under section 436 for a fiscal year is more than $24,500,000, the Secretary shall—

(A) use not more than 2 percent of the amount appropriated to provide technical assistance to eligible systems with respect to activities carried out under this subtitle (consistent with requests by such systems for such assistance for the year); and

(B) provide a grant in accordance with section 434(d) and in an amount described in paragraph (2)(A)(i), to an American Indian consortium to provide protection and advocacy services.

(6) REALLOTMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines that an amount of an allotment to a

State for a period (of a fiscal year or longer) will not be required by the State during the period for the purpose for which the allotment was made, the Secretary shall reallot the amount.

(B) TIMING.—The Secretary may make such a reallotment from time to time, on such date as the Secretary may fix, but not earlier than 30 days after the Secretary has published notice of the intention of the Secretary to make the reallotment in the Federal Register.

(C) AMOUNTS.—The Secretary shall reallot the amount to other States with respect to which the Secretary has not made that determination. The Secretary shall reallot the amount in proportion to the original allotments of the other States for such fiscal year, but shall reduce such proportionate amount for any of the other States to the extent the proportionate amount exceeds the sum that the Secretary estimates the State needs and will be able to use during such period.

(D) REALLOTMENT OF REDUCTIONS.—The Secretary shall similarly reallot the total of the reductions among the States whose proportionate amounts were not so reduced.

(3) COSTS OF NOTICE.—The costs of the notice required under paragraph (2)(C) shall be paid by the State.

(c) SYSTEM REQUIRED.—The system described in subsection (a) shall—

(B) provide information on and referral to programs and services addressing the needs of such individuals;

(2) have the authority—

(A) to investigate incidents of employment discrimination, including harassment, and to conduct investigations of systemic employment discrimination, of such individuals if the incidents are reported to the agency or if there is probable cause to believe that the incidents occurred; and

(8) hire and maintain sufficient numbers and types of staff (qualified by training and experience) to carry out the agency's functions, except that the State involved shall not apply hiring freezes, reductions in force, prohibitions on travel, or other policies to the staff of the agency, to the extent that such policies would impact the staff or functions of the agency funded with Federal funds or would prevent the agency from carrying out the functions of the system under this subtitle;

(9) have the authority to educate policymakers; and

(10) provide assurances to the Secretary that funds allotted to the State under section 433 will be used to supplement, and not supplant, the non-Federal funds that would otherwise be made available for the purposes for which the allotted funds are provided.
